Dr Thomas Edward Rawson (Kegworth General Practitioner 1835-1850 approx)

Introduction

I have put together this account of the Rawsons in New Zealand because I have a connection to one of the spouses. I was having difficulty working out whether occasional Rawsons encountered in the records were “family”, and decided the only solution was to produce my own account. I had realised that some of the places where they settled and their chosen occupations were influenced in both families by availability of kin to lend support. Both families produced surveyors as well as dentists, and both had branches in Westport.

It appears that most of the early NZ Rawsons are part of the present family. The exceptions are a group descended from William RAWSON (from Lancashire ?) and Elizabeth Brice HAINES who farmed at Maheno in North Otago.

This work is based almost entirely on articles in Papers Past and the online registration indexes of births, deaths and marriages, and for this reason I have not recorded sources specifically. Other sources were the FreeBMD index to English registrations, NZ Electoral Rolls indexed by NZSG, and the NZSG IndexV5. A great deal more biographical information could be extracted from the newspapers by anyone wanting to build a more detailed story.

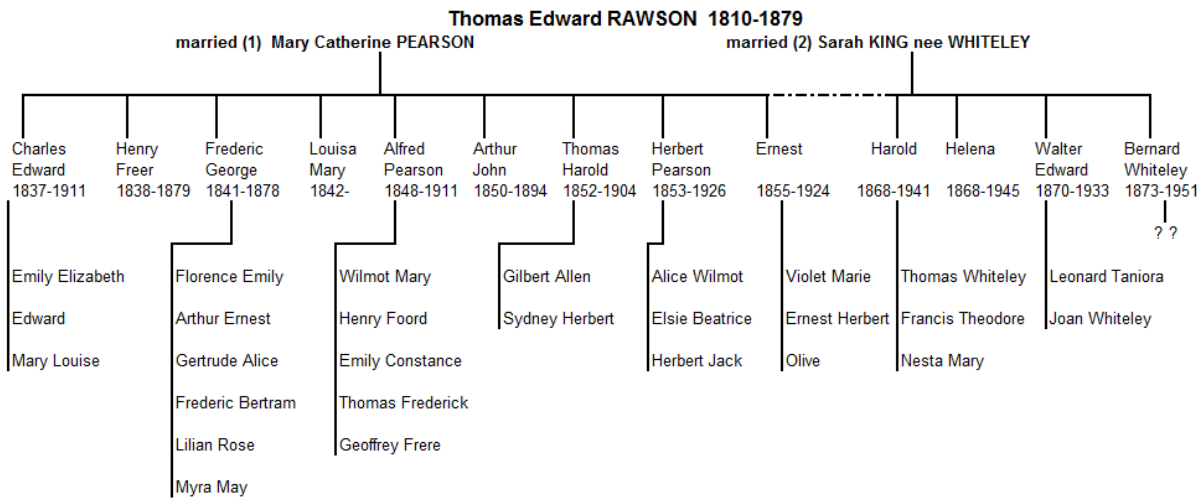

There may be additional grandchildren of Dr T E Rawson born after 1914, and possibly additional children who died in infancy in England.

My thanks to Dr Herbert Dick RAWSON for providing family photographs.

I would be pleased to make corrections if notified of any errors.

1879: Obituary 16 Dec Taranaki Herald: On Sunday at about three o'clock in the afternoon, Dr. T. E. Rawson, who has for some time been an invalid, breathed his last. Dr. Rawson had nearly reached the age which is said to be the allotted span of human existence, being in his seventieth year. He was born at Windsolt, in Leicestershire, and, after studying for the medical profession, started in practice in London. He afterwards removed to Kegworth, in Leicestershire, where he had a very large practice. In 1858 he emigrated with his family to Taranaki, and the war breaking out shortly after his arrival, he was appointed Surgeon-Major to the Militia and Volunteers of the District. In 1861, he resigned that position, and went to Auckland, where he commenced to practice his profession. He, however, returned again to Taranaki in 1863, when he was appointed Hospital Surgeon, which, with other offices, he held until a short time ago, when failing health compelled him to resign them. Dr. Rawson was highly respected, and enjoyed a large share of the confidence of his medical brethren.

Second Generation (Children)

2. Charles Edward RAWSON (Thomas Edward (Dr) ¹) was christened on 22 Feb 1837 in Kegworth, Leicestershire, UK [Baptist] and died in 1911 in Invercargill, NZ at age 74.

Resident Magistrate and District Judge, New Plymouth for 30 years, then Invercargill.

Obituary: As a young man the late Mr C. E. Rawson, whose death was announced this week at Invercargill was an active participator in the Maori war in Taranaki district. When the war broke out in 1860 he was about 20 years of age, and with two younger brothers, Henry and Fred, at once offered his services, and joined the Volunteers, or settler-soldiers as they were then called. They were actively engaged at the Battle of Waireka. A force composed of settler-soldiers and regulars marched up from New Plymouth to attack the Maoris at Waireka. Soon after the fighting commenced the regulars were withdrawn, and the Volunteers were left to stem the attack. The fight was very hot, and the Volunteers beat the Maoris, with the assistance of some man-o'-war's-men who attacked from another quarter. The sailors rushed the pa and climbed over the palisading regardless of the storm of bullets. The fight was also memorable for the energetic words of encouragement given by Major Stapp rallying the Volunteers. The Rawson lads had an unenviable experience during the fight. The bugle sounded the retreat, but as they and three other companions were not familiar with bugle calls—they had only been Volunteers for a week—they remained in the position they had taken up. Fred Rawson was badly wounded by a Maori bullet, and as this was the first, engagement in which Volunteers had assisted the Imperial troops he was the first Volunteer to be wounded in defence of his country. They waited until nightfall and then made for the beach, and returned in camp. On their way to the beach the little band of Volunteers heard a groan, and after a short search they discovered another Volunteer badly wounded. A stretcher was improvised with guns and coats, and the wounded man carried to the beach. It was intensely cold and the wounded man was spent, so they decided that four of them should push on for assistance whilst the other two lay down beside the wounded man in an endeavour to keep him warm. The doctor who was sent out to attend the wounded man and young Fred Rawson was the latter's father, Dr T. E. Rawson.

Descendants of Dr Thomas Edward RAWSON

After the Volunteers were dispensed with Mr C. E. Rawson went to Auckland, and was given the position of warder over the prisoners. He was later made bailiff at New Plymouth, then clerk of the court, and subsequently deputy-registrar. In those days it was allowable for a man to study for the law without being articled, so Mr Rawson pursued his studies and passed his examinations as a barrister and solicitor. He subsequently was made a magistrate, and then district judge. All those offices he held in New Plymouth. He was transferred to Invercargill and retired in 1897 on pension. Mr Rawson was held in high esteem by all who knew him. Otago Daily Times 2 Sep 1911

Obituary Wairarapa Times Mr A P Rawson

The death occurred at his residence Donald Street at 1.30 o'clock this morning of Mr A P Rawson, a highly respected citizen of Masterton. The deceased gentleman had been ill for some considerable time and was making steady progress towards recovery when he suffered a relapse which ended fatally.

The late Mr Rawson was 64 years of age and with his parents came to NZ 50 years ago, arriving at Auckland. His father Dr Rawson was honorary surgeon of the home forces which came to the colony. Dr Rawson and family removed to Taranaki shortly afterwards but returned to Auckland again with the troops when the Maori war broke out. Subsequently the late Mr Rawson and his brothers engaged in farming pursuits in Taranaki and had many exciting experiences in those strenuous times. Some thirty years ago Mr Rawson went to Nelson, where he studied for a surveyor and passed his examination. After practising successfully in Nelson for many years Mr Rawson came to Masterton, this being about thirteen years ago. He had an extensive practice and surveyed and subdivided a large number of the important estates in Wairarapa, including Jean's estate, Wrigley's estate, Yates' estate, Lenz's estate and Cole's estate.

Though he took no active part in public affairs, the late Mr Rawson was always keenly interested in matters which had for their object the advancement of the town and his advice was often sought by public men. The deceased gentleman, who was of a kindly disposition and very popular, leaves two brothers (Dr Rawson and Mr H P Rawson, dentist, of Wellington), a stepbrother (Mr Walter Rawson, judge of the Native Land Court) and two stepsisters, who reside in England, five children (Mrs F W Dunn, of Ballance, Miss C E Rawson and Messers Harry, T and G Rawson) and a widow to mourn their loss, and they will have the sympathy of a wide circle of friends in their bereavement.

Alfred married Sarah Isabel WILSON on 4 Jan 1879 in Motueka, NZ, daughter of Joseph Foord WILSON and Madalena "Madge" SINCLAIR. Sarah was born on 16 Feb 1859 in Motueka, and died in Wellington on 6 Apr 1932 at age 73. She was buried in Porirua cemetery.

- 27 iv. Thomas Frederick RAWSON 1886- nothing further known
- 28 v. Geoffrey Frere RAWSON 1889-1977 married Doris Elinor Margaret HINDLESMITH (1892-1988), nee BEARD. He was a farmer of Waikaraka and Whangarei

7. Arthur John RAWSON (Thomas Edward (Dr) ¹) was born about 1850 in Leicestershire, UK, died in Oct 1894 aged about 44, and was buried in Karori Cemetery.

1861-62 - boarder at Nelson College, sent from Taranaki to the safety of Nelson
Obit WairarapaTimes 15 Oct 1894: We regret to have to record the death of Mr Arthur J Rawson, which occurred this morning at Wellington after a somewhat prolonged illness. Mr Rawson was originally on the Government Survey staff, retiring in 1879 to take up a private practice on the West Coast. About nine years ago he came to Masterton and resided here until within a few weeks of his death. The deceased was a brother-in-law to Mr C E Bremner, engineer to the Wairarapa North County Council, and has several brothers holding prominent positions in various professions, amongst them being Dr Rawson and Mr Herbert Rawson of Wellington, and Mr T Rawson, Engineer to the Westport Harbour Board. The deceased, who was the fourth son of Dr Rawson of New Plymouth, leaves a widow but no family.

Arthur married Ella Frances BREMNER in 1881. They had no children

9. Herbert Pearson RAWSON (Thomas Edward (Dr) ¹) was born about 1853 and died in 1926 aged about 73.

Obituary: The late Mr. Herbert Pearson Rawson, of Seatoun, who died at Timaru on Sunday, was the seventh son of the late Dr. Thomas Rawson, M.D., and was a brother of the late Dr. Ernest Rawson and step-brother of Judge Rawson. He was born in London in 1853, and came out to New Plymouth with his parents when a small boy. He had vivid recollections of the early pioneering days and of the Maori War; while his elder brothers were fighting, he, with his sister and younger brother, was sent to Nelson for safety. When a young man Mr. Rawson became a pupil of his brother, Mr. Henry Rawson, dentist, and subsequently took over his practise in Wellington. He married in 1880 Agnes Beatrice, daughter of the late Mr. William Symons, of London and Wellington. In his younger days Mr. Rawson was an enthusiastic member of the Port Nicholson Yacht Club, and in the "Girola" carried off numerous prizes. He was instrumental in getting the first Dental Act passed, and was first president of the Dental Association. For some years he was chairman of the Ferry Company, and had hockey lawns, etc., laid down at Day's Bay. He was also chairman for many years of the Seatoun Road Board, and was chairman of the Seatoun and Bays Progressive Association. Mr. Rawson was chairman of directors since its inception of the Mercantile and General Insurance Company. He was returning from Auckland on the company's business when the train disaster took place at Ongarue three years ago, and, as a result, has been in indifferent health ever since, dying of heart trouble in his seventyfourth year in Timaru when returning from a holiday. He leaves a widow, two daughters (Mrs. Francis Davison and Mrs. Mathew Holmes), a son (Dr. H. J. Rawson), and seven grandchildren. Mr. Rawson was a most enthusiastic gardener, and after living for some years on Wellington terrace made his permanent home at Seatoun, where his beautiful garden is a well-known feature of the district. The funeral took place from his late residence at Seatoun this afternoon. Evening Post 23 Sep 1926
